Brixxbox „Free Trial"

General terms of use and license conditions

Version 2 of November 30, 2020

You have the opportunity to test and get to know brixxbox free of charge via our following "Trial" offer.

(1) In order to use the trial, you must first register. After registering, you will have the opportunity to test the brixxbox platform within the framework of our "Trial" offer for a period of 30 days. If you do not log in within the 30 days, your trial access will end automatically after the 30 days.

Your trial access ends automatically after 30 days from registration and does not automatically change to a paid access. The test access is free of charge for the entire duration! The instance will be deleted when your test account ends. The test access does not have to be cancelled. There is no entitlement to a test account. Brixxbox GmbH is entitled to discontinue or change the test access at any time after prior notice.

(2) Brixxbox has the right to provide users with usage or licence-related information in the form of emails, phone calls and the like at any time without prior notice.

(3) Applications created on the brixxbox platform may only be used for testing purposes and not for productive use.

(4) The maximum number of users per test access is 3.

(5) We collect and store the technical data and related information provided by you and collected by us, in particular technical information about the hardware and software environment for the contractual items as well as their application software and peripheral devices, in order to create your test access and to enable you to use the test access. You can object to the processing of your data at any time in accordance with our data protection declaration. Please refer to our data protection declaration for further details.

(6) In addition to these provisions, our General Terms of Use and Licensing of Brixxbox GmbH, which can be found at https://brixxbox.net/en/terms-and-conditions/ , apply.